DISCLOSURE STATEMENT FLORIDA STATUTE 489.103 (7)

State law requires construction to be done by licensed contractors; you have applied for a permit under an exemption to that law. The exemption allows you, as the owner of your property, to act as your own contractor with certain restrictions even though you do not have a license.

You must provide direct, on-site supervision of the construction yourself. You may Build or improve a one-family or two-family residence or a farm outbuilding. You may also build or improve a commercial building, provided your costs do not exceed $25,000. The building or residence must be for your own use or occupancy. It may not be built or substantially improved for sale or lease. If you sell or lease a building you have built or substantially improved yourself within one (1) year after the construction is complete, the law will presume that you built or substantially improved it for sale or lease, which is a violation of this exemption.

You may not hire an unlicensed person to act as your contractor or to supervise people working on your building. It is your responsibility to make sure that person's employed by you have a license required by state law and by county or municipal licensing ordinances. You may not delegate the responsibility for supervision work to a licensed contractor who is not licensed to perform the work being done. Any person working on you're building who is not licensed must work under your direct supervision and must be employed by you, which means that you must deduct F.I.C.A. and withholding tax and provide worker's compensation for that employee, all as prescribed by law. Your construction must comply with all applicable laws, ordinances, and building codes, and zoning regulations.
